MY-CIL funding and disclaimer

- Funding for MY-CIL is provided by the Disability and Rehabilitation Research Project on Minority Youth and Centers for Independent Living at Hunter College, City University of New York.
- This project is jointly funded under grant number 90DPGE0013 as a cooperative agreement between the Office of Independent Living Programs and the National Institute on Disability, Independent Living, and Rehabilitation Research, both in the Administration for Community Living, U.S. Department of Health and Human Services.
- The contents do not necessarily represent the policy of the Department of Health and Human Services, and you should not assume endorsement by the federal government.

CILs and minority youth with disabilities

- Many youth are potentially eligible for services:
 - There are more than 2.4 million youth with a disability in the United States
 - 44 percent of youth (aged 16-24) with a disability are from a racial or ethnic minority (~1.07 million)
 - Nearly one-third (30 percent) of youth with a disability are neither working nor in school
 - 40 percent of out-of-school youth with a disability are from a racial or ethnic minority

CILs and minority youth with disabilities

- CILs play an essential role for youth with disabilities:
 - Transition is one of five core independent living services
 - Many CILs (40 percent) report most of their consumers are from racial or ethnic minority groups

MY-CIL Project

- Research to generate new knowledge on effective CIL practices for out-of-school youth ages 14 to 24 from minority backgrounds
- Technical assistance to increase CILs' capacity to adopt evidence-based practices
- Learning collaboratives for CIL training, capacity building, and knowledge exchange
- Dissemination on promising and innovative practices
- Stakeholder advisory group to inform MY-CIL research and learning activities

Overview of SCRS-IL

- SCRS-IL serves a racially and ethnically diverse consumer population in the California counties of Los Angeles, Orange, Riverside, and San Bernardino
- SCRS-IL programs and practices support minority youth with disabilities, many of whom are out of school, through:
 - Employment collaborations with state agencies such as Vocational Rehabilitation and Developmental Disability Services
 - Educational collaborations with local colleges:
 - Science, technology, engineering, and mathematics (STEM)
 - Empowering Disability Groups Through Education (EDGE)

Panel discussion #1

SCRS-IL programs and engagement strategies

How would you describe SCRS-IL's primary programs and your approach to staffing, collaboration, and program implementation for youth?

Who are the staff involved?

How do race, ethnicity, and language play a role in developing and delivering programs?

How do you access and engage youth, especially those out of school?

How does SCRS-IL collaborate with state and local agencies to work with youth with disabilities?

How are youth involved in SCRS-IL's program development?

How does SCRS-IL fund its activities?

What advice or lessons learned do you have for other CILs and their partners interested in implementing programs that are similar to those developed by SCRS-IL?

Panel discussion #2
Consumers' experiences with SCRS-IL
youth and transition services

Could you tell me what you enjoyed most about SCRS-IL's programs?

How did you find the CIL?

What did you know about independent living or CILs before you joined?

What was it about SCRS-IL and the programs that helped you grow as a person?

What do you think CILs could do to encourage youth and young adults to use CIL programs or activities?

What's next for you?
What are your plans moving forward?
